Fast Facts about Funding History	• Founded in 1929, funds both basic and applied research with a focus moving to problems of violence around 1960. • Supports research that investigates the basic mechanisms in the production of violence, but primacy is given to work that makes a compelling case for the relevance of potential findings for policies and approaches intended to reduce these ills. • Likewise, historical research is considered to the extent that it is relevant to a current situation of violence.

Notable Grant Opportunity

Distinguished Scholars

Recognize leading researchers proposing to make a significant contribution to illuminating an issue of violence. Typically $15,000-$75,000 per year awards for one to two years. Welcomes proposals from any of the natural and social sciences and allied disciplines that promise to increase understanding of the causes, manifestations, and control of violence and aggression. Highest priority is given to research that addresses urgent, present-day problems of violence—what produces it, how it operates, and what prevents or reduces it.
